

About Inspired By Learning

Inspired By Learning (IBL), a Limited Company registered in Scotland UK, was founded in 2012.

As a publishing company, IBL publishes and sells printed and digital books. These are available from the IBL website and at IBL events, such as book launches and seminars.

We co-create with individuals and groups who wish to share their knowledge, learning, study, experience or practice. Our authors often are teaching courses, and by co-creating and publishing a book, they can share their key ideas, supplement learning on their course and explore a topic in depth.

As a training company, IBL organises workshops, seminars and courses, often in partnership with our authors. IBL training courses are 'person-to-person' as well as entirely online. In 2015 we have embarked upon the development of an online learning platform. All our courses include e-access to learning materials.

The IBL Vision

At Inspired By Learning educators who themselves have been inspired by learning - formal or informal - further develop the outcomes of their learning. They clarify and articulate their understanding and their innovative practice. Together we write, create and share inspiring practice and thinking. Our creativity builds upon our inspiration, our experience and evidence.

IBL authors are based in European countries. Ecological fit and relevance is highly valued and IBL publications reflect local and national practice, issues and priorities. All books we publish are available to download in English, but printed books are in the first language of the author.

The Thinking Behind IBL

All learning is expansive. By that we mean that all learning leads to growth, both personal and professional. Through learning, the learner's knowledge, capacities, awareness and horizons develop and unfold. Always. Regardless of what is learned or who is learning. And learning is inspirational, inspiring us to learn, grow and expand even more.

The single vision of IBL is to share thinking, ideas and practice about aspects of learning, teaching, education and human flourishing, which lead to growth and expansion for all those involved. In doing so, IBL gives a voice to those who have something to say and share.

IBL works at small-scale, building from the ground up. IBL empowers the singular voice. It is a forum for emerging authors and trainers who otherwise might find it difficult to be heard either because their work might be viewed by others as too small scale, or because what they are saying is seen as too different or not mainstream enough. IBL aims to remove barriers to communication and dissemination. It is focussed upon facilitating change and creating confidence. IBL co-creates with thoughtful and experienced practitioners and professionals who have evidence that their practice is valid and effective.

Key to success is the co-creative relationship between IBL and authors. IBL is a business and a community and a network. IBL authors are experienced professionals and successful learners themselves, most of whom are new to publishing. IBL provides a unique opportunity for these educators to publish their work easily, quickly and effectively. The co-creative process involves coaching in writing for publication and all the required design, publication and printing processes. And as IBL develops into a training as well as a publishing company, some of our authors will lead seminars and workshops, person-to-person and virtual, in partnership with IBL.

IBL is inspired to empower and co-create with inspirational individuals and teams as they share thought provoking ideas and effective practice in a new way.

Inspired By Learning has some of the characteristics of other publishing companies in the marketplace, but it is unique. Through genuinely co-creative partnerships, IBL makes it possible for innovators to express and share their insights and practice in a range of areas, the desired outcome being the creation and sharing of knowledge, the development of practice and the expansion of individuals.
